Your ISS Action referral — where it stands

What we've built for Chery and Pamela, what we're doing for them, and six things we'd like your read on before we go live.

Applicant Chery Gimps

Sponsor ISS Action • Pamela Newman

Track NYPD Carry Guard

WHERE WE ARE

Thanks for sending these two our way. Rather than run an armed-guard case through the same flow we use for an ordinary carry licence, we built them a portal of their own — because this application has two people working it, not one, and the standard product has no idea what a sponsoring employer is.

It is live but not open. There is no link to it anywhere on our site and no way to find it by browsing; each of them gets a private invitation tied to their email address. Nothing has been sent yet. We wanted your eyes on it first.

WHAT WE BUILT

CHERY — THE APPLICANT

His own file

Everything a normal applicant sees: what he needs to send, what we've prepared for him, and where his case stands. He also sees ISS's paperwork as line items with a status, so he knows what's outstanding on their side without being able to open their documents.

PAMELA — ISS ACTION

The company side

Her own login for the company packet — the Carry Guard company form, the letter of necessity, the 20-hour worksheet, the agency licence and the gun custodian details. She can also work Chery's file with him, which is question 1 below.

WHAT WE'RE DOING FOR THEM

- We hold the forms. The NYPD publishes a set of forms people are normally left to find and fill in by hand — the child support certification, the cohabitant affidavit, the company form, the pre-licence exemption request. We keep the official versions, ask a few plain-English questions, and produce the completed form. Chery reviews it and signs. He never goes hunting for a PDF.
- We chase the people. He gives us names and emails for his references and anyone over 18 in his home. Each of them gets a private link, completes their part, and gets it notarised. We follow up until they're back. He manages none of it.

- We draft what has to be written. The affirmation, the safe-storage statement, and any explanation the history questions require. We write them from his answers — he reads each one and applies his signature.
- He files it himself. We assemble and check the packet, then hand him a worksheet in the NYPD form's own order. The submission and every signature are his. We don't file and we don't sign — the law is clear that the application has to be signed and verified by the applicant.

One thing we haven't settled. We can't confirm from public sources whether ISS holds an NYPD Carry Business licence, or who their gun custodian is. The NYPD requires a Carry Guard application to be made with documentation from the company's custodian, so this decides whether the case can proceed at all. We plan to ask Pamela directly unless you'd rather raise it.

SIX QUESTIONS FOR YOU

Short answers are fine — a line each is plenty. The first two we'd like settled before we send the invitations.

- 1 We're giving Pamela full control — uploading and reviewing every document on Chery's application. Is that right? BEFORE GO-LIVE

She's helping him complete it, so she can upload, replace and review anything in his file, and draft his answers. He still has to sign and submit everything himself. The practical effect is that his employer can read his whole file, including anything he discloses about arrests or orders of protection. We've gated it on his written consent naming exactly what she can see, we log every document she opens, and he can revoke it himself at any time. Is that the normal arrangement in this industry, or should an employer only see status?

- 2 Is the 47-hour course really taken after the licence application goes in, using the pre-licence exemption?

BEFORE GO-LIVE

The State says you need a pistol licence to enrol. The NYPD asks for the 47-hour certificate with the application. The NYPD publishes a "Request for License Pre-Exemption" form that appears to break the deadlock — filed with the application, with an instructor's signed statement. Is that how it actually runs, and would you be willing to be the instructor who signs it?

- 3 Are we asking for the right things — and only those things?

For Carry Guard we're asking for two character references rather than four, we've dropped the 16-hour classroom and 2-hour live fire, and we're not requiring the social media list. If any of those is wrong we're under-collecting. Equally, if there's anything on our list you'd simply drop, we'd rather hear it now.

4 Does an applicant who lives alone still file the cohabitant affidavit?

The NYPD form has a second section for people with no other adults in the home. We currently only ask for it when there's someone to sign. If a lone applicant still has to file the self-attestation, we're missing it.

5 Who signs the ISS company form — Pamela, or the gun custodian personally?

We've set Pamela up as the person who works the packet. If the custodian has to sign it themselves, we need them in the portal too, and we'd rather build that now than mid-case.

6 Do you want a view into this yourself?

We can give you access to watch the case progress, or keep it to a short update from us at each milestone. Your call — it's your referral and we don't want you finding out from them how it's going.

WHAT HAPPENS NEXT

Once questions 1 and 2 are settled we send Chery and Pamela their invitations and start collecting. We'll tell you when the packet is assembled and again when he files. If anything in here reads wrong to you, that's worth far more to us now than after a filing.
