

Follow-up questions

A Blocking — we cannot publish without these

1 Your disclosure.

You mentioned language you need on the site. Please send it exactly as you want it to read. We would also like to know:

- where it has to appear — the profile page, the intake form, both, every page that mentions you?
- does it replace what we have drafted, or sit alongside it?
- does anything need to be above the fold or otherwise prominent, or is a standard footer placement fine?

YOUR ANSWER

2 Is this attorney advertising, and if so what does it need?

A page about you on our site may fall under the New York advertising rules. You are the one who decides that, but so we build it right the first time: do you need the words “Attorney Advertising” on the page, your office address displayed, a copy retained for your records, or anything else? We would rather over-comply than have you find something later.

YOUR ANSWER

3 Sign off on your credentials.

Everything currently on the page came from your website, Avvo and Super Lawyers — you have not confirmed any of it, and we will not publish claims about you that you have not checked. Please confirm or correct:

34 years in practice
Admitted: New York, Connecticut, various federal courts
J.D., New York University School of Law, 1991
B.A., Cornell University, History, cum laude, 1988
Super Lawyers, 2009-2011 and 2013-2026
Avvo 10.0 - 4.9 stars across 53 client reviews
AV Preeminent
American Law Institute, elected 2013
Second Circuit Pro Bono Panel
Serving New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and Florida

Two specific ones: do the Super Lawyers and Avvo ratings need an explanatory disclaimer about how the ratings are determined? And are you comfortable with the “53 client reviews · 4.9 stars” figure being displayed, or would you rather we drop the review numbers entirely?

YOUR ANSWER

B Fees

4 What is the rate?

The page currently says $300 per hour — that number came from us, not from you. What should it say?

YOUR ANSWER

5 Do you want the rate shown publicly at all?

Some attorneys prefer not to. We can show it, show a range, say “consultation fees quoted directly,” or say nothing.

YOUR ANSWER

6 How do people pay you?

Card, invoice, retainer up front? We just want the page to describe it accurately — and if it would be useful, we can help here. We are able to set up a payment processor for your firm and integrate it so clients pay you directly through it: your account, your money, nothing routed through us. Entirely optional, and if you would rather keep billing exactly as it is, the page can simply say so.

YOUR ANSWER

c The intake form

7 Does the field set work for you?

Anything missing that you would want before picking up the phone? Anything you would rather not receive?

YOUR ANSWER

8 The conflicts question.

It currently reads “Are you currently represented by another attorney on this matter?” Is that the right question and the right wording?

YOUR ANSWER

9 Where should submissions go?

Right now they reach us and we forward them. We can instead send them straight to an address of yours, with us copied or not copied at all. Straight to you is cleaner for confidentiality — your call, and it changes what the page says about privilege.

YOUR ANSWER

10 Response expectations.

The page says you review each request personally and reach out at your earliest availability. Do you want to commit to anything more specific, or keep it as it is?

YOUR ANSWER

▮ Your profile content

11 Are these the right six services?

Premises and carry applications; appeals of denials; rifle and shotgun permits; suspensions and revocations; renewals and amendments; correspondence with the License Division. Anything to add, cut or reword?

YOUR ANSWER

12 The “when to call him” list.

We wrote eight example questions — sealed arrests, citizenship, transport, denials, orders of protection, out-of-county licences, employment consequences, suspensions. Are any of those ones you would rather not invite? Are there obvious ones we have missed?

YOUR ANSWER

13 How should your name and firm appear?

“Ethan A. Brecher, Esq.” and “Law Office of Ethan A. Brecher, LLC” — and 244 Fifth Avenue, Suite B241, New York, NY 10001. Please confirm the address is what you want displayed.

YOUR ANSWER

14 Anything you would like added?

Representative results, a short statement in your own words, publications — the page has room, and it reads stronger with something written by you rather than assembled by us.
